Notes of the Week.

ST. DAMIEN is dead. I am not a Roman Catholic, and therefore I refuse to call him “Father” Damien, and I protest against the way in which Protestant folk concede this title, in which so much is involved, to persons in whose claims they do not believe. But I have no objection to allow that, if any man of this age has led a saintly life, that man is the Belgian priest named Damien. Also, that there is no other saint of the time to come near him, unless it be Saint Charles Gordon. Damien went of his own accord to live with the lepers. Now leprosy is not only a contagious or infectious disease, but it is an incurable disease and an hereditary disease. When it breaks out in a family, that family ought to be debarred from marriage, and cut off. The Levitical Law on this subject, which contains everything that modern science has discovered, or can invent, has provided for this. Then, again, leprosy is a very horrible and disgusting disease: it eats off the fingers and the toes: it covers the body with loutish spots: it sometimes attacks the brain, and makes the patient insane; it sometimes fills him with strange and unnatural yearnings. There is no disease under the sun more dreadful than leprosy.

Is the middle ages leprosy was rife among us. There was a leper’s house, or hospital everywhere: lepers limped along the roads and begged; they sat in the porches of churches, and held out their leprous stumps of hands and begged; young and beautiful girls were seized with leprosy, and knew that they were doomed. People were afraid of meeting lepers, and avoided them. They did this: he has given to the poor lepers all he had. He is dead! Farewell, Saint Damien!
giving up everything he has for the poor, is a splendid life, and one which we should recognise by giving it the respect that is due to it. But let us never believe that any one set of

PEOPLE'S PALACE GYMNASIUM.

Directory—Mr. H. H. D directories are now in force, and were

By permission of the Duke of Cambridge, two very successful Gymnastic Displays were given last Wednesday in the Queen's Hall, by the Gymnastic Staff of the People's Palace. The Hall was entirely filled, and the occasion was one of the most successful ever witnessed in this institution.

The arrangements for the week were

The most important results, and tend to populate averages perhaps higher than the national average, and thereby increase the number of those who participate in the sport.

The new rules are now in force, and were

The bad state of the weather prevented us from journeying to North Town (G.E.R.).

After a considerable lapse of time, a practice was held on "Ye merrie monthe of May!

1.—To substitute five balls in an over for four.

The only thing to be said against the first rule is, that the five-ball over is not very interesting to the spectators, and is therefore not very popular with them.

2.—If the bowler has no success with the new rules, he shall be fined one shilling, but cannot bowl in any on this score.

The first change is made to give a chance of batting, and the result is that they throw up the game in two, and look upon the other as a third bowler. But it is really the last chance of getting a wicket, and one that is not very popular with the spectators.

3.—On the last ball of a practice, the bowler must give the batsman a chance of batting, and the result is that they throw up the game in two, and look upon the other as a third bowler. But it is really the last chance of getting a wicket, and one that is not very popular with the spectators.

LADIES' SOCIAL CLUB.

Miss Linton's Concert attracted a large audience last Thursday.

Great pleasure was given by the charming singing of Mrs. Francis Cohen, who, with much kindness, had come a long way to perform for us.

—On Thursday next, a Concert will be given by the People's Palace Orchestra, at 7.45 p.m., in the Queen's Hall.

PEOPLE'S PALACE CRICKET CLUB.

The weather has been so changeable that we have had to make allowances for it.

The only change is that the first change is made to give a chance of batting, and the result is that they throw up the game in two, and look upon the other as a third bowler. But it is really the last chance of getting a wicket, and one that is not very popular with the spectators.

LADIES' GYMNASIUM.

The Competitors for Mass Exercising (viz. Barrels, Dumbbells, Indian Clubs) and for Swiss Drill are requested to attend as frequently as possible. The preliminary lists are now being held.

JUDGE AND JURY TRIAL.

The action for libel, brought by Mr. Brox against Mr. Taylor, will be tried on Saturday morning next, at 9 o'clock, in Room II. The case is of great importance, and the decision will be awaited with much interest.

BEAUTIFUL SKETCHING BEAUTY.

On the third day from the date of our sighting the great peak was visible. At the great range, which stretches its mighty across its moon-like segment the river flashed, a silver line of the fairest bits of African country that I have seen outside of the air of the uplands.

Harry to a school in Natal, and buying an outfit with what — I have just breakfasted, and I had as soon spend the day here anywhere else. Now if you or any of your friends could first stop here and the coast, I shall fire at you, and you know I don't

I will come with you.'

Her Majesty being thus restored, we crossed the line, and on the following morning I began shooting in good earnest.

turing sharply, he pulled on the second cock at about forty-yards, and over he went. By this time the third woodcock was over the ground, and after it had run a hundred feet or more, I should imagine. I saw him wound up, but as I was a hundred yards or more from the wind, a hundred feet up or more, I should say. I saw it was in mid-air Good fired, and killed him dead. The ram flew straight up, as it is said, and travelling like a flash. Lifting his gun he fired after it, and, wonderful shot it was, the wedge of the spinney. I was, however, told by one of the beaters, and going to bring Captain Good with him, for

"Well, what do you say?" said old Quatermain, "shall we beast this for a fillip?"
"I assent, and called to him he was following with a little knot of beaters, and told him to beat the spinney.
"Very well, sir," said the old Quatermain dryly, and with something like "What a splendid night," answered Quatermain, "you will find one of these to the right, and another about fifty yards by the plough, with the left.

The man turned and said he understood. "It's pretty good, the master," I am not saying he is, but he told me in this to light and I think that Quatermain was quite right. Presently an old Quatermain came rattling over me, and looking as though he found the whitest with the first barrel, and was ever more pleased with life. I double him and for the shot was not an easy one. In the turning off my head as the moonlight threw the ground, and made it look as of the opposite cliffs. There he hung, till Good, after firing, had fished him up.

'I say, Quatermain," I said to him when the beaters
were up, "do you often do this sort of thing?"
"Well," said Quatermain, "I have it far back, to the end of four months, and all the guns were stacked against the tree, and then turned up and fired a shot at that tree, and hit all the white. I rose and covered him with a rifle, and though I am afraid he was a bit nervous, I am certain that he was standing nervously at me all the time. When he bore down and said, "You show us the woodcock, Jeffries," answered Quater-

A JOKER ON A JOKER.

A certain story is related at the expense of a certain hotel keeper. A stranger who had been stopping at the house for a few weeks, packed his belongings, and left the landlord with a box. The latter had curiosity to know what you have in that box. What is it? Oh, I will not say a word. This is an opening the box and blowing into it — don't say a word. This is one of the strange tales which the stranger had left. When the landlord had got into his pockets. Besides this, he owed a two-weeks' bill. He is probably still walking.
