THURSDAY, Feb. 27th.—Library open from 10 to 5 and from 6 to 10, free.—Newspapers may be seen from 8 a.m.
FRIDAY, Feb. 28th.—Library open from 10 to 5 and from 6 to 10, free.—Newspapers may be seen from 8 a.m.
SUNDAY, Mar. 2nd.—Organ Recitals, at 12.30, 4, and 8.
SATURDAY, Mar. 1st.—Library open from 10 to 5 and from 6 to 10, free.—Newspapers may be seen from 8 a.m.
THURSDAY, Feb. 27th.—Library open from 10 to 5 and from 6 to 10, free.—Newspapers may be seen from 8 a.m.

NOTICE.
By payment of an additional fee of sixpence per quarter, Students will have the privilege of attending the Concerts and Entertainments arranged expressly for them in the Queen's Hall on Wednesday evenings.

AN EFFICIENT COOKERY SCHOOL is now available; Evening Lessons on Mondays, Thursdays, and Fridays. Day Lessons, Monday and Thursday afternoons. Full particulars at the Schools Office.

Notes of the Week.

COAL has been found in Kent. It appears to be a continuation of the great coal beds of France. Geologists have always differed as to the probability of coal being found in the southern counties. The only questions now are—whether it will pay to dig so deep and whether the discovery will make coal cheap. Coal can, I believe, be purchased at the pit mouth for seven shillings a ton. If this proves to be the case with the Kentish coal, one of the necessities of life, for Londoners, will be reduced by half. Let us endeavour to prevent a corresponding fall in wages.

BARNUM is gone. That is a good thing. The spectacle of his face on every hoarding will now go too. The fact that a show is the biggest in the world does not really make it the best. For my own part I stayed away. I am one of the few million who have not seen the big show. I do not regret this loss, except that it prevents my pointing out from personal experience why the biggest show was not the best. Others, however, have sufficiently proved the fact. Nor do I see why a showman, who is only a showman—not an actor or a performer or an artiste of any kind—is to be regarded as a great man, and worthy of honour.

If the biggest thing out is to be considered the best, let us reserve all our enthusiasm for the great American Exhibition which is going to be held the year after next. They have not made up their minds yet where to have it, but it is going to outdo the Paris Exhibition, and all other exhibitions put together, and we may be quite sure that we shall be overwhelmed with boas as loud as Barnum's that it is the biggest and therefore the best. On this principle the man who lives in the biggest house has the biggest income, and spends the most money, is the best, the noblest, and the most to be venerated.

LONDON has so few old houses left, that those which remain ought to be regarded as national monuments. If we name so many old houses, Lord North's House, Sir Paul Pinder's House, we have nearly exhausted the list. And now Sir Paul Pinder's House is to be taken down by the Great Eastern Railway, who are enlarging their Liverpool Street Terminus. Has a Railway Company any compassion? Can it be moved by tears and prayers? But I despair. I have seen Sion College, the most beautiful old place in London, wantonly destroyed by the London clergy, its official guardians. I am about to see the destruction of Emmanuel College, one of the most charming of our almshouses. And now I am to see the destruction of one of the most beautiful monuments of the fifteenth century. Soon there will be nothing left but endless rows of new and hideous houses.

COAL has been found in Kent. It appears to be a continuation of the great coal beds of France. Geologists have always differed as to the probability of coal being found in the southern counties. The only questions now are—whether it will pay to dig so deep and whether the discovery will make coal cheap. Coal can, I believe, be purchased at the pit mouth for seven shillings a ton. If this proves to be the case with the Kentish coal, one of the necessities of life, for Londoners, will be reduced by half. Let us endeavour to prevent a corresponding fall in wages.

BARNUM is gone. That is a good thing. The spectacle of his face on every hoarding will now go too. The fact that a show is the biggest in the world does not really make it the best. For my own part I stayed away. I am one of the few million who have not seen the big show. I do not regret this loss, except that it prevents my pointing out from personal experience why the biggest show was not the best. Others, however, have sufficiently proved the fact. Nor do I see why a showman, who is only a showman—not an actor or a performer or an artiste of any kind—is to be regarded as a great man, and worthy of honour.

If the biggest thing out is to be considered the best, let us reserve all our enthusiasm for the great American Exhibition which is going to be held the year after next. They have not made up their minds yet where to have it, but it is going to outdo the Paris Exhibition, and all other exhibitions put together, and we may be quite sure that we shall be overwhelmed with boas as loud as Barnum's that it is the biggest and therefore the best. On this principle the man who lives in the biggest house has the biggest income, and spends the most money, is the best, the noblest, and the most to be venerated.

LONDON has so few old houses left, that those which remain ought to be regarded as national monuments. If we name so many old houses, Lord North's House, Sir Paul Pinder's House, we have nearly exhausted the list. And now Sir Paul Pinder's House is to be taken down by the Great Eastern Railway, who are enlarging their Liverpool Street Terminus. Has a Railway Company any compassion? Can it be moved by tears and prayers? But I despair. I have seen Sion College, the most beautiful old place in London, wantonly destroyed by the London clergy, its official guardians. I am about to see the destruction of Emmanuel College, one of the most charming of our almshouses. And now I am to see the destruction of one of the most beautiful monuments of the fifteenth century. Soon there will be nothing left but endless rows of new and hideous houses.

I AM always finding new things in this City of London. The other day I lit upon a new old almshouse. I am afraid to say where it is for fear that the Metropolitan Railway will immediately want to build a station on the spot. It is in the corner of a square. Now I had walked about that square many times, but I had never seen it till the other day. It is the most peaceful little almshouse in the world. You pass into a little flagged court, and you have a row of houses on each side. In the middle of the court is a little building, like a diminutive chapel. It is, in fact, a synagogue, surely the smallest in the world.
This is, in fact, a Jews' almshouse. As I looked in at the window, and mark the arrangement, which the sea on either side. The total distance from ocean to ourselves for the neutralisation of the canal. Again, 111 1876, doned—after sinking millions of French money the rival Brethren will be cast out again upon the noisy street.

The map you will see that the Republic of Nicaragua contains the prospect that unless the canal brings into the country a new white man is not present to be continually disturbing people, sometimes leaping up in columns of fire, and sometimes flying across the ground. We shall hear plenty of other new and terrific truths of civilisation, to mould public opinion in the profession of journalism, to become master of the great questions. But the public has no patience to find its way to the Court to be tried. The double cage, in which the arms and legs are fastened. We comb, hammock and blankets, the prisoners being compelled, upon being smitten with remorse, went away and asked to be judged, and then that the above-mentioned Jack Sheppard escaped; and leg-irons, similar to those he carried away with him the second time; also those to those who believe in Party as representing the truth to the new and mighty truths of civilisation, to mould public opinion in the profession of journalism, to become master of the great questions.

The performance of "Samson," given by the above Society in the Queen's Hall, was of a very high order—no doubt the cause being endowed and not permitted to succeed. The aim of the above-mentioned Jack Sheppard was to mystify the whole world, and to become master of the great questions.

There are no vowels for Somers. —J. H. THOMAS, Hon. Librarian.

Society and Club Notes.

At the last Council meeting, the subject of the board of education was under discussion, and a resolution was passed to the effect that the members of the board should be, as far as possible, elected from the different districts of the city. This was at that time a very unpopular measure, but it has proved to be a great success, and the board has been able to carry on its work with much greater success than it had previously done.

The second annual meeting of the Palace of the Dodo Minstrel Troupe was held on Monday evening, Feb. 26, 1890, and a large and enthusiastic audience was present. The programme consisted of a variety of songs, dances, and sketches, and was well received by the audience. The performance was conducted by the Conductor, Mr. ORTON BRADLEY.

The Committee desire to thank all those who have supported the above-mentioned Jack Sheppard in any way, and to extend the thanks of the Committee to all those who have contributed to its success. They are simply stocks, in which the arms and legs are fastened. We keep them apart, and not permitted to see each other, although able to see the men around them. This has proved to be a very successful method of treatment, and the Committee desire to thank all those who have supported the above-mentioned Jack Sheppard in any way, and to extend the thanks of the Committee to all those who have contributed to its success.
Church we looked at the monument erected (from subscriptions eighteen martyrs, who suffered death by the stake on this spot. We split up into three divisions, each taking a separate route. As we machines which have but recently found much favour in England, upon is brought in contact with revolving cutters, which relief from the cutting edge. In the machine shop, several stee their respective places. In the boiler shop, were boilers in all stages One furnance for heating the rivets was fed with hquid fuel a of completion. The rivetting was done by hydraulic pressure.

On Saturday last, we went to Custom House to meet the above Side announced that the ••• hands, man was_our goalkeeper. Jje totally hugging the ball in both arms. A yell of "hands," was raised and the teams stood aside; the man was on his feet at once, the ball was unable however, to stop a hot shot being sent right at the head

Answers to Correspondents.

_F. HARRY and R. CROMPTON._Subscriptions received with thanks.

_F. HARRY._I am most glad to receive the matter you send, as well as my news of your counties. Possible could not be more familiar with your name.

_E. A. SHARMAN.—We shall be most glad to receive the matter of our factory. It is a real pleasure to work with such a capable writer, and we are gratified to hear that our work is appreciated by such a well-known author.

Christopher Columbus. By John Nichol.

_Cesar's Commentaries on the Gallic and Civil Wars. A__

The excitement aroused by this preaching spread among the children of all classes like a plague, and no one, even the wealthiest, was exempt from the infection. The little ones either died in convulsions or pined to death in misery and despair. The parents of the victims seemed to be helpless, and their children were lost to them forever. The story of her mistreatment and the goodness of her heart, and breathes in every line an intense sympathy with her sad life and most further on reveals some of the barbarities committed in of various documents.

The excitement aroused by this preaching spread among the children of all classes like a plague, and no one, even the wealthiest, was exempt from the infection. The little ones either died in convulsions or pined to death in misery and despair. The parents of the victims seemed to be helpless, and their children were lost to them forever. The story of her mistreatment and the goodness of her heart, and breathes in every line an intense sympathy with her sad life and most further on reveals some of the barbarities committed in of various documents.

P. W. F. STEAGALL.—The translation is extremely close, the style is well kept up. Side-lights on the Stuarts. By F. A. Inderwick. A delightful essays of notes on that interesting period which formed so a great a crisis in the History of England. The chapter con­

THE CHURCHMAN

THERE were no less than three of those movements called _children's crusades: the first in 1212, the second in 1295, and the third in 1302._

The first is the one usually referred to as the children's crusade, because it was the first to which children contributed the largest sums. It was proposed by a poverty-stricken French knight, Peter the Hermit, who was inspired by the preaching of St. Bernard. The crusade was organized by the monks of Citeaux, under the leadership of St. Louis, who was a great patron of the project. The plan was to travel to the Holy Land by land route, passing through Egypt, and then by sea to Syria. The crusade was financed by the sale of indulgences, and the proceeds were used to support the crusaders and to buy provisions for the journey. The crusade was a failure, and the crusaders were returned to France by the Pope, who had been persuaded by the French king to rescind the indulgences. The second crusade was the Albigensian Crusade, which was fought against the Albigensian heretics in southern France. The crusade was led by the Count of Toulouse, and it was financed by the sale of indulgences, which were used to support the crusaders and to buy provisions for the journey. The crusade was a failure, and the crusaders were returned to France by the Pope, who had been persuaded by the French king to rescind the indulgences. The third crusade was the Latin crusade, which was fought against the Muslims in the Holy Land. The crusade was led by the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II, and it was financed by the sale of indulgences, which were used to support the crusaders and to buy provisions for the journey. The crusade was a failure, and the crusaders were returned to France by the Pope, who had been persuaded by the French king to rescind the indulgences.

26th Feb., 1890. R. W. J. THE PALACE JOURNAL.

February 26th, 1890. THE PALACE JOURNAL.

Recent Additions to the Library.

Peoples Palace Technical Day School.

HARLMERS' CLUB.

Church we looked at the monument erected (from subscriptions eighteen martyrs, who suffered death by the stake on this spot. We split up into three divisions, each taking a separate route. As we machines which have but recently found much favour in England, upon is brought in contact with revolving cutters, which relief from the cutting edge. In the machine shop, several stee their respective places. In the boiler shop, were boilers in all stages One furnance for heating the rivets was fed with hquid fuel a of completion. The rivetting was done by hydraulic pressure.

Cesar's Commentaries on the Gallic and Civil Wars. A

The excitement aroused by this preaching spread among the children of all classes like a plague, and no one, even the wealthiest, was exempt from the infection. The little ones either died in convulsions or pined to death in misery and despair. The parents of the victims seemed to be helpless, and their children were lost to them forever. The story of her mistreatment and the goodness of her heart, and breathes in every line an intense sympathy with her sad life and most further on reveals some of the barbarities committed in of various documents.

P. W. F. STEAGALL.—The translation is extremely close, the style is well kept up. Side-lights on the Stuarts. By F. A. Inderwick. A delightful essays of notes on that interesting period which formed so a great a crisis in the History of England. The chapter con­

THE CHURCHMAN

THERE were no less than three of those movements called _children's crusades: the first in 1212, the second in 1295, and the third in 1302._

The first is the one usually referred to as the children's crusade, because it was the first to which children contributed the largest sums. It was proposed by a poverty-stricken French knight, Peter the Hermit, who was inspired by the preaching of St. Bernard. The crusade was organized by the monks of Citeaux, under the leadership of St. Louis, who was a great patron of the project. The plan was to travel to the Holy Land by land route, passing through Egypt, and then by sea to Syria. The crusade was financed by the sale of indulgences, and the proceeds were used to support the crusaders and to buy provisions for the journey. The crusade was a failure, and the crusaders were returned to France by the Pope, who had been persuaded by the French king to rescind the indulgences. The second crusade was the Albigensian Crusade, which was fought against the Albigensian heretics in southern France. The crusade was led by the Count of Toulouse, and it was financed by the sale of indulgences, which were used to support the crusaders and to buy provisions for the journey. The crusade was a failure, and the crusaders were returned to France by the Pope, who had been persuaded by the French king to rescind the indulgences. The third crusade was the Latin crusade, which was fought against the Muslims in the Holy Land. The crusade was led by the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II, and it was financed by the sale of indulgences, which were used to support the crusaders and to buy provisions for the journey. The crusade was a failure, and the crusaders were returned to France by the Pope, who had been persuaded by the French king to rescind the indulgences.

26th Feb., 1890. R. W. J. THE PALACE JOURNAL.

Recent Additions to the Library.

Peoples Palace Technical Day School.

HARLMERS' CLUB.

Church we looked at the monument erected (from subscriptions eighteen martyrs, who suffered death by the stake on this spot. We split up into three divisions, each taking a separate route. As we machines which have but recently found much favour in England, upon is brought in contact with revolving cutters, which relief from the cutting edge. In the machine shop, several stee their respective places. In the boiler shop, were boilers in all stages One furnance for heating the rivets was fed with hquid fuel a of completion. The rivetting was done by hydraulic pressure.

Cesar's Commentaries on the Gallic and Civil Wars. A

The excitement aroused by this preaching spread among the children of all classes like a plague, and no one, even the wealthiest, was exempt from the infection. The little ones either died in convulsions or pined to death in misery and despair. The parents of the victims seemed to be helpless, and their children were lost to them forever. The story of her mistreatment and the goodness of her heart, and breathes in every line an intense sympathy with her sad life and most further on reveals some of the barbarities committed in of various documents.

P. W. F. STEAGALL.—The translation is extremely close, the style is well kept up. Side-lights on the Stuarts. By F. A. Inderwick. A delightful essays of notes on that interesting period which formed so a great a crisis in the History of England. The chapter con­

THE CHURCHMAN

THERE were no less than three of those movements called _children's crusades: the first in 1212, the second in 1295, and the third in 1302._

The first is the one usually referred to as the children's crusade, because it was the first to which children contributed the largest sums. It was proposed by a poverty-stricken French knight, Peter the Hermit, who was inspired by the preaching of St. Bernard. The crusade was organized by the monks of Citeaux, under the leadership of St. Louis, who was a great patron of the project. The plan was to travel to the Holy Land by land route, passing through Egypt, and then by sea to Syria. The crusade was financed by the sale of indulgences, and the proceeds were used to support the crusaders and to buy provisions for the journey. The crusade was a failure, and the crusaders were returned to France by the Pope, who had been persuaded by the French king to rescind the indulgences. The second crusade was the Albigensian Crusade, which was fought against the Albigensian heretics in southern France. The crusade was led by the Count of Toulouse, and it was financed by the sale of indulgences, which were used to support the crusaders and to buy provisions for the journey. The crusade was a failure, and the crusaders were returned to France by the Pope, who had been persuaded by the French king to rescind the indulgences. The third crusade was the Latin crusade, which was fought against the Muslims in the Holy Land. The crusade was led by the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II, and it was financed by the sale of indulgences, which were used to support the crusaders and to buy provisions for the journey. The crusade was a failure, and the crusaders were returned to France by the Pope, who had been persuaded by the French king to rescind the indulgences.
Gymnastic Entertainment & Concert
By STUDENTS of the
ROYAL NORMAL COLLEGE AND ACADEMY OF MUSIC FOR THE BLIND, UPPER NORWOOD, S.E.

On Wednesday, February 26th, 1890.

PROGRAMME

Gymnastic Entertainment & Concert

SOLIOSTE:

Mr. BERESFORD-JANKINSON, Mr. JOHN NICHOLSON, Mr. GUY M. CAMPBELL.

TENOR—Mr. ALFRED BAGGS.

BAR.——Mr. JOSHUA BRAND.

PIANO—Mr. HARRY GREENWOOD, Mr. GILBERT HARDEBECK, & Mr. JAMES FIELD.

Assistant—Mr. WILLIAM A. DAVE.

Conductor & Gymnastic Performers—Mr. GUY M. CAMPBELL.

Gymnastic Performers:

JAMES AMOS, JOSHUA BRAND, HENRY BUDDE, ALFRED CARS, STANLEY DAVIES,

GEORGE FOUNTAIN, JOHN GILL, ALBERT GREEN, CHARLES HANCOX,

ARTHUR MAYES, BERESFORD-JANKINSON, ALEXANDER MATTHEWSON, JOSEPH MINES, and JOHN MURPHY.

Organ.—Mr. CHARLES HANCOX.

Assistant.—Mr. HARRY GREENWOOD.

Accompanist.—Mr. GILBERT HARDEBECK.

PIANO.—MR. HARRY GREENWOOD, MR. GILBERT HARDEBECK, & MR. JAMES FIELD.

Gymnastics and Concert.

Programme:

PART I.

1. Solo and Chorus: "The Image of the Rose."——Mr. ALFRED BAGG.

2. Glee: "Lady of Beauty, Away Away."——GARDNER GLEE CLUB.

4. Song: "The Champion of the Sea."——Mr. CHARLES HANCOX.

5. Parallel Bars: Piano—Mr. JAMES FIELD.

6. Song: "The Nereids."——Mr. BERESFORD-JANKINSON.

7. Long Wands: Piano—Mr. GILBERT HARDEBECK.

8. Piano Solos: (a) "Jubilé," and (b) "Allegro."——Mr. HARRY GREENWOOD.

PART II.

1. Solo and Chorus: "The Hall of Beauty."——Mr. CHARLES HANCOX.

2. Glee: "Marche Rêverie."——GARDNER GLEE CLUB.

3. Quick Marching:——Piano—Mr. JAMES FIELD.

4. Song: "The Message."——Mr. ALFRED BAGG.

5. Vaunting Horse: Piano—Mr. JAMES FIELD.

6. Song: "The Farmer's Story."——Mr. JOHN NICHOLSON.

7. Pyramids, Etc.: Piano—Mr. JAMES FIELD.

8. Organ Solo...——"Marche Rêverie."——Mr. CHARLES HANCOX.

God Save the Queen.

A Cycle Tour in France

(Concluded from page 168.)

The Palace Journal.

The Palace Journal.

Feb. 26, 1890.

In the Palace Journal.

Feb. 26, 1890.

In the Palace Journal.

Feb. 26, 1890.

It is easy to love the good-looking woman.

Make your bag with your show your pure.

It is easy to look at the good-looking woman.

It is a mighty poor article that can't get testimonials.

A cyclist has no little of the pride of a dog in the far away country.

The third thing looks more respectable than the honest man.

A dog will answer to your name when you raise a bone.

The obstinate cyclist who sticks to his ship after he goes down.

The most of opportunity is that few of us know how to take advantage of it until it is past.
Wendy has made a voyage up the Hudson to remember the Kaatskill mountains. They are a chain of mountains that stretch across the state of New York, and are very popular for hiking and scenic views. Wendy has been looking forward to this trip for weeks, and she is eager to explore the mountains and see the beautiful vistas.

Wendy's journey begins with a boat ride up the Hudson River, with its scenic views of the mountains and the surrounding countryside. The river is calm and serene, with the mountains towering in the background. Wendy enjoys the peacefulness of the ride and takes in the beauty of the landscape.

As they approach the mountains, Wendy sees the first signs of their grandeur. The mountains rise up majestically, their peaks reaching towards the sky. The air is fresh and crisp, and Wendy feels a sense of awe and wonder.

They arrive at their destination, a small village nestled at the base of the mountains. The villagers are friendly and welcoming, and they are eager to show Wendy around their town.

Wendy explores the village, marveling at the quaint buildings and the picturesque streets. She visits the local market, where she buys fresh fruits and vegetables from the local farmers.

As the sun sets, Wendy returns to her hotel. She sits on the balcony, watching the stars twinkle in the night sky. She feels a sense of peace and contentment, and she knows that she has made the right decision to come on this journey.

The next day, Wendy sets out on a hike up the mountains. She walks up the trail, taking in the breathtaking views of the valley and the river below. She climbs higher and higher, until she reaches the top of the mountain. She stands on the peak, looking out over the valley and the mountains, and she feels a sense of triumph and accomplishment.

Wendy's journey has been a success, and she knows that she will remember it for a lifetime. She looks forward to coming back again and exploring the area some more.
Technical Classes are limited to Members of the Trade in question.

"Shakespeare" Upholstery

Elementary Class, including

Build. "Con. & Draw.—Materials, etc.

Applied Mechanics

Special classes will be held to prepare students for the City Guilds Examinations, of 2/6 will be required to replace breakages.

Organic Chemistry — Theo., Practical

Modelling in Clay, etc...

Wood Carving

Special classes for females on application to the Secretary.

Day clashes are held for Landscape and Mower Painting, Still Life, and Pottery. Students are supplied free with apparatus and a lock-up cupboard. A deposit of 1s. is required to cover loss or damage.

TUESDAY.

Mrs. S. L. HaslucK

Mr. D. A. Low...

Mr. F. C. Forth,

Mr. A. W. Bevis...

Ph.D., F.C.S.

"Choral Society" Sings

Solicitors, Journalists, etc.

Mr. A. Grenville...

Mr. H. Spender...

Mr. Smith

Mr. W. R. Adnitt...

Mr. T. Drew

Mr. W. Coleman,

Mr. W. R. Cave...

Mrs. Spencer

Mons. Pointin...

Mr. F. C. Forth,

Mr. H. Spender...

Mr. Smith

Mr. W. R. Adnitt...

Mr. T. Drew

Mr. W. Coleman,

Mr. W. R. Cave...

Mrs. Spencer

Mons. Pointin...

Mr. F. C. Forth,

Mr. H. Spender...

Mr. Smith

Mr. W. R. Adnitt...

Mr. T. Drew

Mr. W. Coleman,
MILE END AUCTION MART
330 & 332, MILE END ROAD.

Messrs. W. UPTON & CO.

Sell by Auction every Saturday & Friday at 7 p.m., a quantity of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE AND EFFECTS.

Freehold and Leasehold Houses and Land sold by auction and privately.

RENTS COLLECTED